

and absolute rest. I doubt if she will be prepared to go to the theatre this evening, although she is very desirous of pleasing her American friends by going, if only for an hour.

People about the Princess at the ball last evening noticed that her face bore a strained expression and that she seemed to feel mechanically, perfunctory.

The story got about that she was under a strain of anxiety caused by a telegram received yesterday from Paris, saying that one of her children there was very ill.

Commander Davis denied this story. He said:

"The infant was a little worried over a letter mailed in Paris April 20, and received yesterday. It had been addressed to her at Havana, and had followed her to New York. It said that one of her children was ill, but as no further news has been received to her she feels certain that the child is well again.

"She was worked up about it enough, however, to make her send a cablegram to Paris, asking for full particulars."

During a call by Gen. Horace Porter and N. K. Bayne, this morning, Prince Antonio, the husband of the Infanta, signified a desire to visit the establishments where American firms and others were so sold, and it was quickly arranged that he and Duke Tamas should set out with their visitors at 1 o'clock this afternoon for a visit to such establishments.

What She Mixed.

Down on the pier at the foot of West Thirty-ninth street there was a bustle and activity all the early morning.

The beautiful steamer Monmouth lay beside the pier awaiting the coming of the Spanish guests and their entertainers of New York.

Caterers were being despatched to the material for a magnificent banquet, and in decision and haste the little steamer was being cleared for the ship with beautiful flowers, flags and bunting.

Crowds began to wander their way down street and avenue to the pier, and Capt. Price, a roundsman and ten blue-coats were busy keeping the deck clear of the companyway was reserved for the Princess and her suite, with staterooms Nos. 3 and 5 set apart for retiring-rooms for the Infanta.

A table was built in the forward cabin, which is furnished in mahogany and gold-leafed, and on this table was a floral design in red and yellow roses, representing the Spanish flag, 4 by 4 feet in size.

There were a hundred immense bouquets, baskets of flowers and floral pieces, all addressed to the Infanta by her admirers, and the interior of the whole vessel was lit up with flags, Old Glory and the Spanish colors alone being conspicuous.

Hundreds were disappointed. By 9 o'clock the people began to arrive on foot and by carriage. They were received by Howard Carter and Nicholson Kane as they arrived, and fully 10,000 people were on the pier by 10 o'clock.

There were "Oh dears" and "It's too, too bad" from the ladies and expressions just as full of earnestness from the men. But there was nothing to do for this army but to march down the pier and across the water.

There was a hurried consultation between the committee men, the caterers and the florists, and then the magnificent floral decorations were dismantled and the flowers were distributed among the ladies present, all but the Spanish flag and those pieces addressed to the Princess and bearing the carols of the senders.

These were placed in carriages and taken to her at the hotel Savoy.

Then such of the food prepared for the Infanta as was perishable was distributed among the children on the wharf, and for an hour West Thirty-ninth street witnessed a procession of a hundred of ladies bearing flowers and urticaria munching rolls, biscuits and the like.

Many carriages arrived up to 11 o'clock with people who had been invited, but had not heard of the postponement of the trip till Monday.

A wagon load of flowers was sent to Bellevue Hospital and some to other non-sectarian institutions, and the preparations will all have to be done over again on Monday.

The Catholic club will tender a reception to the Infanta tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock, at 120 West Fifty-ninth street. The reception will be under the auspices of Archbishop Corrigan.

DIDN'T WAIT FOR EULALIA.

Mrs. Cutting and Other New York Society People in Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 27.—Mrs. Bayard Cutting, now at the Auditorium, was one of the original committee for the reception of the Infanta Eulalia at New York, but did not stay in Gotham until the arrival of the Princess.

Mrs. Stuyvesant was also said to be on her way to Chicago without having met the Princess, although she was likewise one of the original patronesses.

An unlooked for interference is said to have modified the plans of some of the society women in New York in making the reception of the Infanta purely a society affair.

Among the arrivals yesterday were Mrs. Edward Marshall Brown, Miss E. L. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Peters, Miss Marion and Miss Isabel Peters.

AFFAIRS IN WALL STREET.

The Week Closes with Quiet Markets and Weak Tone.

Bank Statement Shows an Unexpected Gain in Surplus Reserves.

WALL STREET, Saturday, May 27.—The week closed with quiet markets and a rather weak tone to speculation at the Stock Exchange.

Lower quotations were received from London, and had an adverse influence. After the foreign selling efforts were exhausted there was a brisk rally, under the leadership of Manhattan and Distillers, but the bears soon started prices on the down tack again, and even succeeded in neutralizing the effect of the favorable bank statement.

Very little interest was taken in the dealings, which, as usual at late, were largely speculative. The room traders are generally bearish, and there being no outside support the tendency of the market is naturally downward.

General Electric was again conspicuously weak, selling down to 65, the lowest of the week. At the close, however, the stock rallied to 67 1/2.

Among the specialties Interior Condensers and Insulating material, and National Cordage preferred 2 1/2 to 3.

The imports of specie for the week were $10,377,501, of which $1,624,589 were dry goods and $8,752,912 general merchandise.

The bank statement shows a gain of $1,000,000 in surplus reserve. A. J. had been generally expected. It appears that the banks gained nearly $3,000,000 by the interior currency movement, and lost about $3,500,000 by Sub-Treasury operations and gold exports. The banks now hold $2,747,747, decrease of $500,000.

The net earnings of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company for April 1893, an increase of $14,000, from January to April 30, the net earnings were $20,717, an increase of $48,323.

The net earnings of the St. Paul and Northern Pacific for April 1893, an increase of $218,641, and for the ten months ended April 30, 1893, were $2,884,741, an increase of $129,750, and for the year ended April 30, 1893, were $2,884,741, an increase of $129,750.

Money was nominally 2 1/2 to 3 percent on call.

The sterling exchange market closed strong and higher at 4 1/2 to 4 3/4 for bankers' 60-day bills, 4 1/2 to 4 3/4 for demand, and 4 1/2 to 4 3/4 for telegraphic transfers.

The sales of stocks were 125,000 shares. The unlisted department 8,200 shares of stocks were traded in.

LENTZ HAD PNEUMONIA.

Autopsy on the Man Who Died After Being Turned Away from Bellevue.

Deputy-Coroner O'Hare made an autopsy this morning upon the body of Oppenheim Lentz, who dropped dead at First Avenue and Twenty-ninth street, on Thursday night, shortly after being discharged from Bellevue Hospital.

Lentz, who lived at 72 Elm street, was arrested for being drunk in the street. He was somewhat bruised, and an ambulance surgeon, who examined him at the Jefferson Market Prison reported that it was probable that the man's ribs were fractured, and sent him to Bellevue.

At the hospital three surgeons who examined the sufferer pronounced it a simple case of drunk, and sent him away. Dr. O'Hare's autopsy seems to confirm the opinion of the hospital physicians. He says that death was caused by pneumonia and alcoholism.

The man then had a severe attack of pneumonia, and the fracture of the ribs was partly reformed, and must have happened four months previous.

MRS. HUTCHINS'S ROBBER.

The Police Look Wise and Inanimate a Doubt.

Capt. Thompson Says Nothing Was Stolen After All.

TREMONT, N. Y., May 27.—The alleged masked thief, Mrs. Lulu Hutchins, says, bound, gagged, and robbed at her home, 181 Main street, West Farms, Thursday night, was according to the police of the Tremont station, not yet been captured.

Although Mrs. Hutchins tells a very straightforward story of the assault upon her, there is apparently a grave doubt in the minds of Police Captain Thompson and his subordinate officials that she was the victim of a robbery, but to get a definite opinion from them in the matter is very difficult.

To an "Evening World" reporter who saw him at the Tremont station this morning, Capt. Thompson said that the robbery was being investigated by him. He looked very wise while declaring that the alleged thief did not steal anything, but he said she was a victim of her own nervous disposition and that she was the victim of a robbery, but to get a definite opinion from them in the matter is very difficult.

Of course, we are doing our utmost to solve the case, but it is a hard thing to catch. Mrs. Hutchins is a nervous little woman, of an excitable temperament, and really the only assault she received, as far as I have been able to learn, was a blow on the chest.

"It is an extraordinary case. My investigation so far only shows that a lot of children were playing around the house just at the time.

"They say she was alone, but I have no opinion on the matter, but it seems very extraordinary."

The man then had a severe attack of pneumonia, and the fracture of the ribs was partly reformed, and must have happened four months previous.

His remains will be interred in England.
